An Overview

The committee codebook includes the names and dates of existence for all House, Senate, and Joint committees, subcommittees, and select and special committees from 1947 to 2010. Several committee and many subcommittee names changed over this period. We attempted to maintain temporal continuity where possible. Garrison Nelson's (1993) reference book entitled, Committees in the U.S. Congress, 1947-1992, provided a list of name changes and dates of activity for full committees for most of the period of our study.

Documenting Subcommittee Name Changes

In early versions of this dataset, the Congressional Quarterly Almanacs and Congressional Staff Directories were used to track name changes and dates of activity for subcommittees; where gaps exist, we also relied on the Congressional Index, and Congressional Directories. These materials provide yearly lists of subcommittee names and their members. Subcommittee name changes were matched through time by comparing the membership lists of each subcommittee from year to year. In some cases it was clear from the membership lists that an existing subcommittee had simply changed its name, in other cases it was unclear. If we could not determine that a subcommittee was new or an existing subcommittee that had been renamed, we simply treated the subcommittee as new and assigned it a new code.

Update, 5/6/2019: As of our latest update, we are no longer assigning numbers to subcommittees. All observations after this update (for CIS 2017), will contain the subcommittee's full text name, rather than a number. We will continue to assign numbers to full standing and select committees.

A Note of Caution

Certain committees formed many temporary and special subcommittees with narrow jurisdictions over specific issues, while some committees changed their subcommittee names with greater frequency than others. Researchers should use caution when conducting analysis at the subcommittee level for the following committees: (House) Armed Services, Education and Labor Committee, Science, Space, and Technology, Small Business; (Senate) Armed Services, Commerce, Science, and Transportation, Foreign Relations, Judiciary, Labor and Public Welfare, Small Business.

Code Structure

The committee\subcommittee code consists of five digits. For the purpose of analysis, this code is divided into two separate variables in these data sets. The first three digits refer to the full committee and the last two digits refer to a specific subcommittee of that full committee. For example the code "10201" refers to the Subcommittee on Domestic Marketing, Consumer Relations, and Nutrition (i.e., code "01") of the House Agriculture Committee (i.e., code "102"). If a full committee is holding a hearing, then the subcommittee variable is "00". For example, our code "10200" refers the House Agriculture Committee.

Our coding system allows for up to two separate bodies to hold a hearing (i.e, two different full committees, a full committee and one of its subcommittees, two subcommittees of the same full committee, two subcommittees from different full committees). For example, if the House Agriculture Committee (our code 10200) and the Subcommittee on Energy and Agriculture of the House Small Business Committee (our code 12101) jointly held a hearing, the entry for that record would be as follows:

Comm1	Sub1	Comm2	Sub2
102	00	121	01

Note that this entry refers to two separate bodies holding a hearing, not 4 different bodies. The House Agriculture Committee is coded in the Committee1/Subcommittee1 variables, while the Subcommittee on Energy and Agriculture is coded in the Committee2/Subcommittee2 variables.

Also note that throughout this codebook, “S.S.” stands for Special Subcommittee or Select Subcommittee. Please also note that the years in parentheses throughout refer to years that these committees or subcommittees were in existence or active. Where we were able to isolate the dates for these congressional bodies, we have included them.
